LVN Interiors' design philosophy is... To clearly understand the brief and aim for the wow factor. Everything else will fall into place.

What should readers keep in mind when looking for an interior designer? A large part of an interior designer's role is to coordinate the project team and manage many elements of the project at the same time. Therefore your designer must be organised and have an eye for detail.

Lastly, style is one thing, but so is being practical. I often see designs that look amazing but aren't suitable for everyday life.

What elements do you always try to include in your interior design? My aesthetic is bright and clean. I like incorporating neutral colours, light fabrics and light furniture. I use the repetition of materials and textures as well as symmetry in spaces. Natural materials, earthy accent colours and organic textures are common in my designs.

When working on a home, what's the most important factor for you? Selecting pieces that not only bring the room to life, but are suitable to the scale and proportions of the room. One should curate a space rather than just decorate it. Ideally, this should be done from the beginning of a project with the architect.

Good design is... More than just aesthetics. It is all the things visible and invisible that make good design.
